PECULIAR APPEAL TO HEAVEN.

Ceremonial Observed by Chinese When Rain Is Desired.

Prayers for rain are a common feature of religious observance in China. and the attendant ceremonial sometimes takes strange forms. A correspondent of the North China Herald reports a curious celebration which recently took place in Chenyuan. The orthodox three days' fast was proclaimed, and the officials went to the temples to present incense, while the people organized a procession with a plenitude of gongs and drums. As the processionists passed along the street they were dreached with water by the residents, who had tubs in readiness. But the great peculiarity of the occasion was a dog. He was tied sitting up in a common chair with an old garment round his shoulders and an old 'big man's bat' on his head. He got house. route and seemed to have entirely ex. stock we ever had. If you want bansted the glory and the fun of his piece of furniture, come look over position. The explanation of the ceremony was this. Among the domestic animals the dog is placed lowest. But the people in their attempt to move the pity of heaven said in effect: 'We will put ourselves lower than the dog, we will give him the honor of riding in state as our master, if only you will give us rain." The correspondent adds that rain fell before sunset.

STRONG TOMB RENT BY TREE.

Striking Instance of the Great Power of Vegetation.

A correspondence calls attention to a curious instance of the mechanical power of vegetation in the out-of-theway churchyard of Tewin, in Hertfordshire.

A tree, which has been divided into two or three main stems grows straight out of the tomb of a noble dame who departed this life over two centuries ago, and has rent her gloomy home into pieces. Strangest sight of all, it has wrapped itself round the fron railing which used to guard the grave, and which is thus now almost entirely concealed inside the tree.

People come from far and near to see the wonderful sight; and to them is told a story that the quiet inhabitant of this disrupted sepulcher was in her day a lady of very free thinking opinions, and had said she would have placed above her remains a tomb that no person could read.-The Scotsman.

Private Forestry in England. Everywhere in England you see private forests planted for profit. England first won her naval supremacy in element of ginger and head-work in ships built of English oak trees which were practically planted for the purpose on private estates. Public or state forestry hardly exists in England. Here we commonly think that forestry concerns the government only. A few Americans will plant catalpa locust, or some other tree crop that matures in seven to fifteen years, but when the passion for enduring things becomes a national trait with us we will plant oaks and other species that require a hundred years or more to mature. Meanwhile, the bureau of forestry at Washington has a troduce our pump and have your plan for co-operating with anyone who See the Gas Com sany for Sp. neighbors know all about it we offer has a forest in which profit is the chief Wearisome Words. There is nothing tires one more than words, when they clatter like a loose window shaken by the winds. A talkative fellow may be compared to an unbraced drum, which beats a wise man out of his wits. Surely nature did not guard the tongue with the double fence of teeth and lips, without meaning that it should not move too nimbly. When a scholar full of words applied to Socrates for Instruction, the latter demanded of him a double fee! one to teach him to speak well; another to teach him to hold his peace.-Owen Feltham.

Abjuring His Allegiance.

Judge Lowell of the United States circuit court in speaking before the Channing club the other night on naturalization cited many numerous instances of would-be citizens who had been coached for the examination before the court, but who fell down when an unexpected question was asked. "I asked a Turk," said Judge Lowell, "as to whether he understood what was meant when he swore to abjure all allegiance to the sultan."
